Charles B. Warren Rejected For Second Time

DEBATE PRECEDING BALLOT BY SENATE IS OF FIERY NATURE

WASHINGTON, March 16.— The senate today rejected for a second time the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general.

The vote was 46 to 39, compared with the tie vote 40 to 40, on which the nomination was first rejected last Tuesday.

President Coolidge has announced he will offer Mr. Warren a recess appointment, but the nominee has not indicated whether he will accept.

WASHINGTON, March 16.— In a fiery debate, freighted with the accumulated bitterness of a long history-making struggle, the senate today approached a second vote on the rejected nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general, with both sides convinced the outcome would be another rejection.

President Coolidge's announcement that he would offer a recess appointment to Mr. Warren, if he again fails to confirmation, fired the opposition with a new and flaming determination and inspired the democrats and republican insurgents to direct many of their rapier thrusts at the President himself.

Whether Mr. Warren, who is remaining here as the President's guest, would accept a recess appointment was a matter of which there has been no information. Should he do so, he could draw no salary until confirmed by the senate at a later session, although it is contended that he could continue to hold office, not only throughout the recess, but until the end of the session of congress, which begins next December.

The gathering of spectators approximated the scenes of an inauguration day. Several hundred persons, mostly women, lined the corridor on the stairs, near the public gallery, long before the doors were open and rushed for seats of vantage as soon as they could gain admission.

The special gallery for senators' families also filled early and many members of the house of representatives, who have floor privileges, took seats in the senate chamber.

When the senate was called to order, nearly the entire membership was on the floor. Those present included a number of senators who had been away when the roll was called last Tuesday. Among them was Senator LaFollette, just back from his vacation in Florida.

Two new republican senators, Gilbert of Massachusetts, former speaker of the house, and Goff, of West Virginia, a former assistant attorney general, opened the defense of Mr. Warren and the President, while Mr. Borah, republican of Idaho and Reed, democrat of Missouri, took up the coalition fighting for defeat of the nomination.

Small Damage Done At Abstract Office

Small damage was done this morning by fire at the Morgan County Abstract company's handsome office, opposite the courthouse. The fire was said to have originated from the furnace. The Decatur department answered the alarm and quickly extinguished the blaze.

He Hadn't Seen Show for 18 Years

A New York City policeman, who admitted in court he hadn't been inside a theatre for eighteen years, (and he certainly couldn't have seen some of Broadway's latest productions,) went into a Brooklyn cabaret and arrested Frankie Lloyd, a performer, on the grounds that she appeared in shockingly abbreviated costume. So Frankie wore the costume in police court and the judge postponed the case for two weeks, by which time the styles will have changed, anyway. There was a S. R. O. sign on the court room when Miss Lloyd did her stuff.

HUNTER DELIVERS SPLENDID MESSAGE

"Sin of Neglect" Is
Pastors Subject
In Evening

Reverend James D. Hunter delivered an inspiring message to a large congregation at the Central Methodist church on Sunday evening. The pastor talked on "The Sin of Neglect." The musical program for the service was well selected and appreciated by the congregation.

The pastor spoke primarily of the neglect of people who forget the co-operation that God offers, people who let the opportunity slip of joining with the great power of limitless resource. The minister used a material basis for the illustration of his points in saying that neglect in business is the cause for failure, not a lack of ability on the part of the man in charge. The neglect of detail, he thought, was the reason that businesses go to the wall. In speaking of the co-operation that God offers, Dr. Hunter believed that if people were given an opportunity to join with influential men or women, great corporations or receive the great influence of large institutions that they would be only too ready to offer their co-operation. On the other hand, he said, all these earthly organizations, all these great people, have their limitations. He implied that people could go just so far and when that point was reached they were at a loss, to go further was not humanly possible. Then the pastor spoke of the co-operation with God, a co-operation that was limitless, a power that could efface all obstacles. The message was greatly inspiring and received with interest by the attending congregation.

The musical program included a number of songs by the congregation, lead by the choir. A quartette by the Y. M. C. A. four was enjoyed. Mrs. R. M. McGlathery sang a solo in her usual pleasing manner. Attention was called to the revival services at the Central Methodist church. The services are to begin on the 29th day of March.

Officer Surrenders To Sheriff Following
Fatal Duel

(Associated Press)
LIVERNE, Ala., March 16.—William H. Sykes, deputy sheriff and city marshal of Pertie, Ala., and his son, Jodie Sykes, were lodged in jail here yesterday, charged with the shooting to death of Mike Bush, a saw mill laborer in Pertie.

According to Sheriff McQueen, Bush had been accused of discharging firearms on the street and when approached by the officers, resisted arrest. A battle followed in which William Sykes' coat was cut in several places. Five shots were fired by the accused men, all taking effect.

Bush was killed instantly. Sykes and his son surrendered when it was learned that warrants charging murder had been sworn out against them by relatives of the dead man. Preliminary hearings have been set for March 23.

Naval Publication Sketches Local Boy

A short sketch of Benjamin Nunn, formerly of Decatur, now a seaman in the United States Navy, is contained in the current issue of the "Destroyer Base Bulletin," a periodical published by the "gobs" of the U. S. S. Rigel, tender, destroyer base, San Diego, Calif.

The article follows:
"Nunn, Benjamin, Robert, seaman first class, U. S. N., was born in Decatur, Ala., on the 27th day of August, 1906 and started life with a boom. After reaching a suitable age he started to work and being a laborer he soon realized what it means to 'earn your bread by the sweat of your brow.' But not liking the work, he said, I will enlist for a minority cruise in the Navy and from the outlook should make good. For after washing dishes, rustling garbage cans and dishing out beans, he has acquired the position of soda jerker in our recreation hall and bids fair to shake them well. He is a very nice kid and has quite a few friends on the base. If he survives the Coke Ke Kola and Chocka-let-milk stage he may make a good lad."

A bulletin said his condition was satisfactory.

Penalty Clause Falls
On All Delinquents
at Stroke of Twelve

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 16.— The income tax penalty clause falls at the stroke of midnight tonight on the heads of all who have not, by then, filed due returns for 1924.

The calendar has done its part this year, however, in providing against operation of the clause by supplying an extra day's grace for filing returns since March 15, the final day allowed by law, falls on Sunday.

Treasury officials, meanwhile, were speeding preparations today to undertake an analysis on the basis of the returns of the results of the new revenue law, with its reduced tax rate. They hope to have the compilations ready by the end of this week.

Cheer for the dark hours of reckoning today is held out in a statement by Chairman Green, of the house ways and means committee, in which he "sees a favorable outlook" for reduction of $300,000,000 in the nation's taxes for the fiscal year 1926.

WASHINGTON, March 16.— Contracts totalling more than $1,000,000 for new type of aircraft development by the Curtiss company of New York and the Douglass company of California were awarded today by the army air service.

The machines are new observation types which have been approved by the army air service as replacements for the war built DHS type. An award of $70,000 was given the Curtiss company for development of the new machine and the Douglass company received an award of $60,000 for similar work on its production.

Awards were made on the basis of tests made at McCook field, Dayton, O. Ten machines were ordered from the Curtiss company at an estimated cost of $250,000 and 75 at an estimated cost of $883,000 from the Douglass company.

Farmer Saved By Movie Stunt

(Associated Press)
TALLAHASSEE, Ala., March 16.—A miraculous escape from death was effected by Hiram Trautman, a farmer, living near here, when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a freight train on the bridge across the Tallapoosa river.

Trautman leaped from the machine and grasped the rods of a flat car, where he swung until the train was brought to a stop. A companion leaped to the bridge and sustained several cuts and bruises.

In making his escape Trautman sustained four broken ribs and a number of cuts and bruises.

DANGEROUS BLAZE ON BANK STREET

Flames Smothered In Tailor Shop Over
Western Union

Flames, originating Sunday in the Decatur Tailoring company, upstairs over the Western Union office, swept through the tailoring establishment and threatened for a time a large area of the business district of Decatur. Rapid work of the Decatur and Albany departments, both of which answered the alarm, kept the blaze confined to the upper story of the building.

Firemen's reports stated that the blaze originated from ashes and apparently had been smoldering sometime before the fire was discovered shortly after one o'clock. Chemicals were used, but the blaze had obtained too much headway and three streams of water were brought into play.

An immense amount of smoke poured from the building and into adjoining structures, doing some slight damage to the offices in the K. of P. building. The Western Union office suffered some damage from water and smoke.

ARDLEIGH MAXWELL IS DEAD IN MEMPHIS

Former Local Youth Is Fatally Wounded and Dies In Hospital

Funeral services probably will be held here Wednesday for Ardleigh G. Maxwell, aged 24 years, formerly a well known local boy, who died Monday morning in a Memphis hospital, as a result of wounds inflicted earlier in the day at his hotel. He was said to have been despondent over his inability to obtain work.

He was taken to the Baptist hospital in Memphis and J. M. Maxwell, prominent Albany man, father of the youth, was notified by telegraph, of the serious illness of the boy. A second telegram brought the sad intelligence of his death. Mr. Maxwell left immediately for Memphis to take charge of the body. He is expected to return Tuesday evening.

Young Maxwell left Albany early in December to accept a position with the Memphis Light and Power company and his death came as a severe shock to his many friends in the Twin Cities. He was one of the most universally esteemed boys of the Twin Cities.

Surviving relatives are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Maxwell and a brother, Lamar Maxwell, also of Albany.

Fire Fighters Answer Two Calls

The Albany fire department answered two calls Sunday morning. The first call was put in at nine o'clock for the residence of Dr. W. A. Rickles on Jackson street where a fire is thought to have originated from falling sparks on the roof. A small damage was incurred.

The second call came at 11:30 o'clock. A false alarm was put in for a servant house on St.

CARD PLAYING IN HOME PERMITTED

Interesting Decision Is Rendered By Court
In Appeal Cases

Under a decision handed down by the supreme court and in turn rendered by the Morgan county court with Judge William T. Lowe presiding, cards may be played for money within a home so long as it is adjudged to be a private home and the attendance restricted to invited friends.

The decision came as a result of several cases that were brought before the Albany police courts early in February, 1924, following a raid on a private residence.

Eyster and Eyster were the attorneys for the defendants while Attorney Chenault represented the cities.

In the first trial before the city court the defendants were fined. They appealed the case and it was not until this year that a decision was handed down by the supreme court. The decision was rendered on the grounds that "There is no law prohibiting playing at private residences so long as it remains private and the public cannot attend of its own volition."

The attorneys for the defendants admitted that the games had been played but that as there was no law prohibiting the playing in a private residence that they could not be held on the charge.

REVIVAL SERVICE HOLDING INTEREST

Several Join the Church As a Result

The revival services now being held at the First Presbyterian church Decatur with Reverend A. P. Gregory delivering particularly strong sermons is attracting crowds of interested hearers. During the short period in which the revival has been underway a number have joined the church and it is expected that greater results will be realized before the end of the series of talks.

Large congregations attended the church services on Sunday morning, afternoon and evening. Reverend Gregory preached in the forenoon on "The kind of love God wants," in the afternoon he talked with men and boys and at the evening service he spoke on "Heaven." He used as his text, John 15:1, "My Father's House." The speaker described the beauties and the happiness of heaven in very impressive language. He said that heaven is a definite place, an inhabited eternal and perfectly happy place. Mr. C. H. Johnson sang as a solo, "Home Sweet Home."

The evangelist used as his afternoon subject, delivered to men and boys, "An Honest Man."

State Courts Can Try Volstead Cases

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 16.— Persons charged with violation of the Volstead act can be tried in state courts, the supreme court declared today in dismissing for want of jurisdiction, a case brought from Humboldt county, California, by A. Brambini and Isador Massia.

Charged with violating an injunction under the Volstead act, Brambini and Massia were brought to the superior court of Humboldt county and convicted. They contended that being charged with a federal offense, they should have been tried in federal court.

SECRETS OF FALL'S BANK ACCOUNT YET REMAIN A MYSTERY

Evidence Barred From Record By Decision of Judge Kennedy

PLAINTIFF'S CASE LEFT UP IN AIR

Recess Is Allowed to Permit Counsel To Arrange Testimony

(Associated Press)
CHEYENNE, Wyoming, Mar. 16.—Henry A. Wise, attorney for Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who is here after being subpoenaed in the suit, is preparing a statement which will be read on behalf of Mr. Fall, when he is called to the stand in federal court, it became known today.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, March 16. Evidence intended to reveal the secrets of the bank account of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, was barred from the record in the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit here today.

The ruling barring the evidence, handed down by Federal Judge Blake Kennedy, deprived the government of its only known means of attempting to prove an exchange of Liberty bonds between Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, whose Mammoth Oil company was given the lease on the big Wyoming oil reserve.

Judge Kennedy, in his decision, referred to the matter in question as involving something of unusual importance to the plaintiff's case, but that as the matter stands, it is manifestly incompetent and will be barred until such time as it is shown to be competent.

Judge Kennedy's ruling left the government case up in the air so completely that a recess of ten minutes was allowed to permit Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, government counsel, to get their remaining witnesses in shape.

After the recess Attorney Roberts announced he would reverse the procedure previously followed in an attempt to show an alleged passage of bonds between Sinclair and Fall, by tracing the bonds from Sinclair to Fall, instead from the former secretary to the head of the Mammoth Oil company.

The court before had warned Roberts that he was approaching the matter from the "back door."

In a lengthy prelude to his decision the federal judge quoted from rulings on similar procedure, made by the eighth, second and fourth federal circuit courts of appeal, laying particular stress on precedent upheld by the eighth circuit, under which jurisdiction the Cheyenne court falls.

Traffic Markers Bought By Decatur

Ten traffic markers, of new and modern design, have been purchased by the City of Decatur and will be installed within the next 30 days. The markers are of the semi-sunken variety, being imbedded in the streets at intersections.

They contain glass lights, which are said to be particularly plainly discernible at night, when they catch the rays of approaching cars and reflect the machine's own light.

The first purchase was in the nature of a try-out and, if the markers are found to be as successful in aiding traffic, as it is believed they will be, it is possible that additional markers will be bought for other streets.

Postal Employees Enjoy a Banquet

The Albany postal employees were banquet hosts Saturday evening, having invited the employees of the Decatur, Athens and Hartselle offices to be their guests at dinner at the Palace cafe. After a splendid menu had been served, Dr. J. D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist was introduced and delivered an interesting address on "Service."

He urged the matter of education of patrons of postoffices along the line of co-operation with the postal employees, in order that the public might have a proper conception of the many benefits the postal service brings to its users, and in order that by the public's co-operation, the service might be continually improved.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN

"said. Hugh will ever be faithful. He is the truest."

"Yes I know; one of the very best. But marriage with him wouldn't have satisfied your nature. You know that."

"Oh!" she cried startled. "But I shall still marry him—if we get rescued. Please don't think me so disloyal as all that!"

He smiled over this third unconscious appeal for his good opinion. "You call it loyal, then, to carry out a compact when the very motive upon which it was founded has proved an illusion? You would be living a lie all your life—unfaithful to you both. Surely he wouldn't wish it?"

"You don't quite understand," she protested. "I am just as fond of him. It would still be the same."

"Barbara," he said softly, "the love of man and woman is not fondness."

She could not speak. Her heart seemed to rise in her throat and throb there; her limbs trembled. In sudden panic she tried to free her hands, her womanhood realizing her manhood as it had never consciously done before.

The instinct of the wild bird to flee and hide was hers. Her turmoil communicated itself to him, in that vibrant silence. He looked up into her face, seeing there what he had but glimpsed on the night in the natives' hut.

"Barbara!" he whispered shakily, "Barbara! Be true to yourself—"

With a little cry, she wrenched her hands free. As he sprang to his feet forth, then, were two gay together? What a good idea!

His tone was cool enough to a dozen nervous women. She scolded of a great relief as he him in the doorway.

The next few days were happy. The faint chance of caused their little hut to seem the wild free life more on. The spirits of both had never been. Barbara, having conquered her problem with such simplicity, cast it from her rendering herself wholly to the grossing happiness of the moment.

That her very subterfuge, all it did, had been the death her object, never entered her mind. On Christmas eve they armful of greenery, the girl with unconscious paths to the toms which she had been to.

"Ah!" she cried incoherently. "Isn't it all—beautiful?"

"What?" he asked, yet knowing well.

"Oh—everything! Christmas Freedom from Mr. Horne sprang upon a suitcase, trailing in her hands, and laughed down.

He came close to her, the ecstasy lurking in his own eyes. "I wonder if you realize all implied?"

"What?" she looked startled. She turned away, and far side tendril to the bamboo. He her silently, noting the wrought in her by these past. The wild rose air had vanished; the warm blood flowed beneath a sunburned skin; her brown and hardened. Yet, her depths were concerned, remained old timidity which was, paradox her greatest lure and protective false step and she would, he "off on the wing," scared as partridge. But Alan's small patience had been drained to dregs.

Finishing the decoration, she beside him, considering the Ferns and palm leaves away corners; trailing greenery of walls and roof; flowers stood cabin table.

"Cozy, isn't it?" she asked, up for his approval.

"Very cozy!" he replied, looking at her. "What a little home-mine."

She flushed, and again turned away.

"We'll hang this remaining of the entrance, outside. Will you the suitcases?"

He carried out the substitute ladder; and up she sprang, with the art of experience, she the trailing foliage up here, I hang in clusters there.

"And that middle cluster?" Alan, beside her. "Is that for toe?"

Her head rose quickly, as a young deer scenting danger. A quick glance down at him, she saw out her hand toward the bunch put up a long arm to prevent removal. And, in a flash, all the of the past days fell to ruin while she strove again to a vine leaves, the suitcases over and she toppled down upon him.

He caught her and held her clasped her close to a thump and buried his face in her hair.

For a moment she lay inert, she began to struggle, gasping.

But his self-control was gold grip became fierce; she felt breath upon her neck.

"Alan!" she cried wildly. God's sake—"

The fear, as of one drowning, cry, steadied his reeling senses clasp her in his arms, he saw upon the rock. His darkened mesmerized her own; the abyss wide at her feet. . . she a sedulous only of being swept caught in some remorseless toward the edge of the precipice slipping, falling. His lips were to her own.

"Alan!" with almost superhuman fort she managed to gasp in again. "I can't bear it. No! merciful!"

Faintly, with parched mouth desperate petition seemed wrung her very soul.

His arms relaxed abruptly, change coming into their grasp he realized her trembling.

"Why are you afraid?" he mumbled unsteadily.

She raised herself, her face white under its sunburn.

"Don't you see? If you could how can I go on living with you his blood abating."

"Where else would you live the natives for—chaperonage?" She drew a sobbing breath, around with a pathetic gesturelessness which touched his heart passion faded yet more from him. He pressed her against him again protectively.

"It's a d—d lonely position for he exclaimed. Then he rose, with precipitancy that she nearly began walking up and down the hut.

"What have you done?" he ejaculated.

She laughed self-consciously, giving her "bobbled" head a shake, eluding his eyes.

"Oh! I—just thought I would cut my hair," she replied, with elaborate carelessness.

"All your beautiful hair!" he murmured, his gaze never leaving her. "Girls are out of place here!" she observed.

A moment's reflection, and he decided on his course. "I see, Hanco-

Turned and Fled into the Hut.

she turned, and, without a word, fled into the hut.

He stood still for a minute; then he drew a quick unsteady breath, and strode to the shore, to pace up and down up and down far into the night.

Barbara lay awake throughout long hours facing in terrible isolation the great question of sex. What she had dimly realized and vaguely feared, since that revealing moment during their visit to the natives, now loomed up in its naked reality to alter the whole aspect of their life here together.

She faced the true position: realized clearly that she and this man were cut adrift from all the safety of other human companionship, all the restraints of civilization, with this terrible, eternal attraction now menacing them. Escape from it was impossible.

She understood now the nature of the abyss yawning below the precipice which had threatened her of late. This new knowledge illumined the past, even to the strange magnetic attraction, half-fear, in the early days of their acquaintance. It terrified her, shaking her confidence. Her own shield and protector in all they had faced now appeared in the light of the enemy against whom she had no ally!

When she remembered the close clasp of his hands, the pressure of his head upon her breast, her pulses throbbed and her face burned. It must quit, she told herself, repeatedly: this delightful, impossible tenderness between them must be stopped at once. She must resolutely hide her womanhood, showing nothing but the sexless comrade!

As soon as the soft light of dawn had entered the tiny room, she rose. Taking her scissors, she cut through her hair after handful of her long thick hair, wasting no regrets upon the luxuriant tresses piling round her bare feet.

So far, so good! But it happened that Barbara's heart remained unshorn of its sex, with all its natural tendency to look well. When the hair was cut short to her neck, she hesitated; picked up the diminutive mirror; laid it down; picked up the scissors; hesitated again—then laid them down, and gave her head a vehement shake. The short waves and curls, free from all restraint, followed their own sweet will, waving piquantly around her small head, clustering about her ears. . .

Alan stood in the outer doorway, watching a bird preening its bright plumage on a rock. He turned in surprise at her early appearance; but the words of greeting died upon his lips.

"What have you done?" he ejaculated.

She laughed self-consciously, giving her "bobbled" head a shake, eluding his eyes.

"Oh! I—just thought I would cut my hair," she replied, with elaborate carelessness.

"All your beautiful hair!" he murmured, his gaze never leaving her. "Girls are out of place here!" she observed.

A moment's reflection, and he decided on his course. "I see, Hanco-

12 Years Ago From The Daily of TODAY

March 16 falling on Sunday, there was no issue of the Daily on that date.

Mail your income tax return before Monday night, or make up your mind to say "good morning Judge."

The LaFayette Sun interviews a reader who has just returned from a visit to the Rio Grande country. "Queerest river" he ever saw, the traveller declared. "Wet on one bank and dry on the other." The traveller failed to state which bank he stood on.

ISN'T MAN A FUNNY ANIMAL?

Man wakes up in the morning, after sleeping under an advertised blanket, on an advertised mattress; takes of advertised pajamas; takes a bath in an advertised tub; shaves with an advertised razor; washes with advertised soap; powders his face with advertised powder; dons advertised underwear, hose, shirt, collar, hose, suit, and places an advertised handkerchief in his pocket; sits down to breakfast of an advertised cereal; drinks advertised coffee; puts on an advertised hat; lights an advertised cigar; rides to his office in an advertised car, on advertised tires; uses advertised articles in his daily work, and then he refuses to advertise on the grounds that advertising does not pay. WALTER CAMP GOES TO PLAY A GREATER GAME

Walter Camp, world renowned sport authority, intellectual gentleman, good sportsman and a firm believer in the fairness and squareness of the fight that must be fought on this earth has gone on to play a greater game. Camp passed away Saturday in a New York hotel after a life of usefulness spent in the upbuilding of the youth of America mentally, morally and physically.

Mr. Camp was a man who believed in playing the game on the square and his principles were taught in practically every university and college in America. The name of Walter Camp meant cleanliness and wholesomeness to the American youth.

He is lost to the realm of sports in body, but the spirit that he has instilled for fair play will live on. He has spent a life of achieving and building in amateur athletics. He has ended a service with the youth of America that will require a man of great calibre to take up. His position will be hard to fill.

NEGLECT YOUR DUTY ON APRIL 7 AND YOU HAVE PLAYED A PART IN A GREAT LOSS

Neglect, one of the greatest factors that enters into this modern age as an agent to tear down and destroy, is what you will be guilty of in case you fail to go to the polls on April 7th and cast your ballot in favor of the issuance of bonds for the building of the Tennessee River bridge at this point.

Neglect of this great opportunity to further the growth and the expansion of your section and your cities will not be laid at the doors of the outsider or the doors of the highway department. It will be laid justly at the home door, it is your failure and yours alone.

The Daily sides with the majority of the people of the communities in the belief that the plan that the highway commission has offered is quite the most logical and the most advantageous that has been offered. The plans of twenty-five years have not brought forth any more co-operative effort on the part of the commission. The commission has asked that the cities provide $100,000 and the proposed building will become a reality. Can any fairer proposal be made?

A few months ago the cry over the country was "Get Out and Vote." Let us localize the slogan, let us utilize the slogan. Let us get out on that day and cast the ballot of progress. Vote for the bridge bond issue.

SCHOOL ISSUE IS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE NOW AND IN THE FUTURE

A tremendous problem faces the school board of the city of Albany. Suspension while thought to be far away, is not entirely improbable. The school system has been greatly hindered through the placing of a much larger number of children in class.

The board has been to the city council and was unable to gain the granting of the request for the amount necessary for the continuance of the schools through the entire term. This however was no fault of the city council, these gentlemen conscientiously did their best to aid in the present crisis. On a former occasion they had granted a request in the sum of $5,000. Tonight the board is meeting for the purpose of determining upon some plan that will allow the schools to finish the full term and it is sincerely hoped that some logical plan will be the outcome.

A forced shortening of the school term would indeed be a serious blow to the standing of the city. Moreover it would mean an irreparable loss to the children themselves. No accredited university is going to accept students who have not been given the advantage of a full years school training. At this time the Albany high school stands among the best accredited schools in the state and a failure of one single year to carry out the full term will mean that the school system will suffer a severe blow.

The people of the cities should be deeply concerned with this problem and in the future see that support is given the board and the system that no more such trying conditions will be encountered.

ROE FULKERSON GETS INTO ACTION ON THE LAW ENACTMENT QUESTION

Roe Fulkerson, of Kiwanis fame, the writer from who's pen the ode "He's not heavy, he's my brother," was given to the world to admire and to love, takes a shot at the habit in the United States, of making many laws and enforcing a few. Mr. Fulkerson has this to say:

"There are one million, two hundred and seventy-thousand laws and ordinances in the United States. Canada has as many in proportion to its population. Legislation in which non-enforced laws are passed is a farce. Each unnecessary and unenforced law has a tendency to break down the effectiveness of law enforcement and respect of the laws of the land. The tendency to 'pass a law to prevent it,' has steadily grown. Small calibre legislators measure success by the number of bills introduced to make a new law in an already law-ridden continent.

It should be the endeavor of every organization, no matter what its main purpose, to stem the rising tide of laws which now enmesh us. Lawyers admit that they do not know the law on any subject until they have read through several thousand pages of the numerous ponderous tomes which make up a legal library.

When we slow down the passage of new laws and speed up the enforcement of those already on the books, we will have a better managed continent."

"That man may last, but never lives,
Who much receives, but nothing gives;
Whom none can love, whom none can thank,
Creation's blot, creations blank."

—Gibbons.

There is much truth in the assertions that Mr. Fulkerson has made. The country is full of legislators who think that the prime reason they have been sent to the halls of the state and national capitols is that they might add more pages to the nations statute books, while within the cities, the towns, through the whole country, the laws that have been written are not being enforced. People are breaking every law that has been made every day. Enforcement is what is needed on the part of officers with the co-operation of jurors who will not hesitate to give a criminal the full extent of the law. We need no more laws enacted. The Ten Commandments were written and if those laws are practiced in daily life there will be little need for more than the court to establish a man's guilt or innocence.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IS RIGHT

President Coolidge says he is convinced that the opposition to Agricultural Legislation has arisen chiefly from those who make their living through the distribution of the products farmers produce.

We are wondering if this opposition to agricultural legislation does not apply equally as well to co-operative marketing of cotton and co-operative purchasing of fertilizers. We think the chief opposition in our own state to co-operative effort among farmers comes from those who benefit directly out of the handling of farm products.

It is nothing more than can be expected that those who are engaged in buying cotton do not approve of any plan whereby cotton goes direct from the farmer through his own marketing system to the mills. Therefore, members of the Cotton Association should recognize the fact that these men have no reason for supporting co-operative marketing. Members certainly gain nothing by going to this source to get information about co-operative marketing.

There is considerable opposition to co-operative purchasing of fertilizers by the Farm Bureau. The source of this opposition is well known by every one who has to buy fertilizers. It comes from those engaged in the distribution of fertilizers from the manufacturer to the farmer. These people are engaged in the fertilizer business as a source of income. Therefore, it is natural that they will oppose any system that will interfere with the distribution of fertilizers at prices that tend to lessen profit to them.

Every farmer in Alabama should realize that there is always opposition to co-operative effort from sources as outlined above. This should be the best proof in the world to any farmer that it is to his advantage to co-operate with his fellow farmers in these things.—Farm Bureau.

FLORENCE TAKES NEUTRAL GROUND ON THE BUILDING OF SHOALS ROAD

In commenting upon the building of a roadway connecting the Shoals section with the vast industrial territory near the Magic City, the Florence newspapers take the position that the roadway must be built, the shoals and that section must be connected, but they fail to state any position regarding the route that should be followed.

For many days a sort of mild offensive has been underway on the part of Jasper on the one hand and the Twin Cities on the other for the gaining of the support of the Magic City and the Tri City sections. So far as has been ascertained there has been little said either by the Shoals cities or the Magic City people as to their feelings in the matter. All that has been expressed is a desire to see the roadway built. The fight still lies between the supporters of Jasper and the progressive people of the cities of Albany and Decatur.

Do you realize that there has been no move made by this section to get this roadway. True we have been interested for some months in the plans for building the bridge and while that project must be successfully put across, we should not be asleep to the advantages of the other. Events and happenings never come singly, the old saying "when it rains it pours" is most applicable. The cities are confronted with finding the means for swinging the roadway to this section and we cannot afford to go to sleep at the switch.

At this time all the advantage is in our favor. We have the greater part of the roadway already completed. There is no finer stretch of highway in the state than the completed highway between Albany-Decatur and Cullman. Approximately thirty-five to forty miles completed. We have a thriving section, adequate facilities for the traveler, in hotel accommodations, there remains but near seven miles of difficult roadway between here and the Tri-Cities. There is no reason why the route by way of the Twin Cities should not be looked upon as the most logical, but had Washington made no preparation then Valley Forge would have been the death rather than the birth of American Independence. We cannot afford to sit idly by and allow a sister city to take away advantages that we can have, although we should like to see all the cities, towns and hamlets in the state grow and expand. The cities of Albany and Decatur need every bit of trade that such a highway will offer. Let us go after it with the wholeheartedness that we have shown in the plans for the building of the bridge and we can count upon the Tri-Cities to come along with their full influence.

Coming to the Masonic Theatre on Thursday evening, March 19th, for the first time in our city will be the sensational success of two continents "White Cargo," written by Leon Gordon and produced by Earl Carroll, the play has enjoyed a run of over two years at Daly's Theatre, New York and duplicated its furore at the Playhouse, London, and at the Cort Theatre, Chicago. "White Cargo" is a vivid play of love in the tropics, the action taking place on the West Coast of Africa, portraying the struggle for development in a country that defies encroaching civilization and where the ever shining sun breeds inevitable rot—a rot which penetrates not only vegetation, but also the minds and hearts of the white men who attempt to conquer it.

The cast of "White Cargo" has been especially selected with an eye not only to the types they are to portray but with a view of their histrionic ability; the settings and equip-

MCWILLIAMS GOES ON TRIAL TUESDAY

Case Will Attract Much Interest Over This Section

Andrew McWilliams, negro, will probably go on trial as the first capital case to be heard in the circuit court on Tuesday morning when the court will be resumed with Judge James E. Horton presiding in the fifth week of the session. A number of cases of minor nature were disposed of during the past week on the criminal docket.

Court will probably be opened near 10 o'clock Tuesday morning when the trial of Andrew McWilliams who is charged in connection with an attack on Mrs. Cleveland Reed, Austinville woman. The attack took place during the latter part of January and McWilliams has been held since without bail. The negro was removed at one time to a neighboring county for safe keeping.

Wert and Hutson will represent the defendant while the state will be represented by Circuit Solicitor D. C. Almon.

The case of J. C. Rogers, Hartselle man, who is charged with murder in connection with the wounding and death of S. Morris French, will possibly follow the McWilliams case. Whether the latter case will be tried at Tuesday's session or not will depend upon the duration of the McWilliams trial.

Both cases are of considerable interest over the Morgan county section and it is expected that the court rooms will be jammed to capacity when the court goes into session.

How to Solve Puzzle.

The best way to solve this cross-word puzzle is to run over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms in search of evident or "easy" words. If horizontal, the word you are looking for must extend crosswise from the number to the first shaded stop on the right; if vertical, it must extend downward from the number to the first shaded stop below. When finished, the words should read equally well crosswise and downward.

Clears Complexion

"Oh! how clear and beautiful your complexion is today, my dear!"

THERE is a certain joy—a certain pride—in knowing you are admired, whether it be from father, brother, husband or sweetheart! And back of that joy is the satisfaction of knowing all is well.

Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, secretly jealous, perhaps, wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness which is not theirs. But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that craved for attractiveness—that clear skin—that beauty. A clear skin—is the barometer of one's condition. A healthy skin radiates beauty. Pure, clean blood means a clear skin.

S.S.S. is waiting to help you. It will rid your blood of its impurities and give you that clear complexion. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been ridding people of blood impurities, from pimples, from blackheads, boils, eczema and from rheumatism, too. Because S.S.S. is made from fresh herbs and barks, it may be taken with perfect safety. Try it yourself. You will not only look better, but you will feel better, too.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

WESTMINSTER WILL MAKE A CANVASS

Presbyterian Churches Close Years Work In March

Presbyterian churches close their year's work with the month of March, according to announcement of Dr. L. F. Goodwin, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church yesterday. Reports of the work of the year are to be made immediately for the General Assembly, the highest court of the church. Plans are also to be made to carry on the work of the church. The annual "Every member canvass" for the support of the local church and its benevolent work will be made next Sunday afternoon. The plan is rather unique and unusual. Instead of officials going out to visit and solicit funds, the members and friends of the congregation are asked to visit the church between two and five p. m. Sunday afternoon and make their pledges. They will be greeted by the pastor, and received by a committee of the official board who will furnish them with information as to the cost of maintaining the church. Another committee will then receive their subscription. In the announcement the pastor said, "I have faith in my people. I believe they appreciate the worth of the church in the community and will make ample provision for its work. We believe that life, time, skill and money, are but trusts from God. I shall expect to see my people at the church next Sunday afternoon to pledge themselves for its support."

Birmingham Man Head Of Organization For This Year

R. E. Chandler and H. R. Speake, Twin City merchants, have returned from Birmingham, where they attended a meeting, at which time the Retail Clothing Merchants' Association, dormant for several years, was reorganized. Mr. Speake was elected a member of the advisory council.

The association, which is open to all of the clothing merchants of Alabama, will work for the advancement of the retail business of the state and will seek solutions for many problems confronting the merchants of Alabama.

It is understood that merchants of Albany and Decatur will be urged to become members.

Prices of Wheat Tumble Saturday

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 15.—Wheat made a wavering start today and then plunged downward far below yesterday's bottom figures. The dive carried the market five cents a bushel under the preceding close. May delivery touching $1.62.

Trade was of a huge volume, with reports current that wheat at Liverpool was unsaleable.

CABBAGE HEAD PRODUCES

A cabbage head grown in E. M. Lee & Son establishment was recently given to R. C. McWhorter, local trucker, and under his care has produced twelve heads of seed.

Mr. McWhorter on a recent visit to the store inquired of the peculiar growth of the cabbage. The cabbage was given to him for experiment and the result was twelve heads of seed.

Night Coughing—How to Stop It

Night coughing which, through loss of valuable sleep, often makes you feel utterly worn-out and useless during the day, and by quickly weakening the system lays you open to the most dangerous infections, can now be promptly checked by a very simple treatment. People who have hardly been able to rest on account of coughing spells have found that they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often after the very first trial.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. The result is that you usually sleep as soundly as a babe the very first night, and the cough goes in a very short time.

The prescription contains no opiates or harmful drugs. Excellent for children as well as grown-ups. For coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for

"KEEP Your Credit GOOD!"

"Don't Be a Credit Cast-away!"

Credit is more than a matter of money. It is a matter of character. Good credit is a progressive asset. Poor credit is a progressive handicap. What is more forlorn than the man without credit—the man who has been trusted by his fellows and flunked the trust?

By the same reasoning, what is more beneficial than good credit? The man with good credit looks to the future unafraid. Opportunities are his. Credit, his advantage. The man alert to his own interest—pays up and keeps his credit good!
